
Ethical fashion, always looking for more people!

Posted by flawlessonline - 2008/05/22 20:38

Hi,

I have just launched a website with ethical fashion, accessories, kids wear and toys. Everything is quirky cool and either one-off's or very limited editions.

I am always looking for interesting stock to sell (not i am doing this on pocket money and can only take commisions).

Do you have something you think would match?

And would you be so kind to swing by and let me know what you think...

Hi Mette,

Have you considered becoming a member with Fashion Enter to benefit from the variety of services and retail outlets we can provide. We currently provide two retail boutiques in Croydon and Barking for up and coming designers to stock their collections to the general public, we also provide two online retail outlets. FC Boutique is an online Boutique created for designers to upload and edit their own collections at will via FashionCapital, FashionCapital receives over 5.5million hits from over 60,000 core industry users every month, so why not exploit this relevant industry traffic by setting up your own online Boutique saving you the time, hassle and financial struggle of setting up and maintaining your own site. We also provide another online Boutique showcasing collections stocked in the Boutique's.

If you are interested in incresing your exposure to your relevant target market then why not become a member with Fashion Enter and start networking with our extensive database of buyers, retailers and press contacts via our Representing Agent?
