
Work Experience Wanted

Posted by buffystar2 - 2005/10/31 17:51

Hello, my name is Fiona and i am an eager A Level student who would like to study Textile Technology as a career.

I would very much like to be given the opportunity to work within the fashion industry, gaining well needed experience and aqiring new skills and knowledge about my future prospects.

I am very nifty on a sewing machine and know all the basics machine requirements. I currently study Textiles and Art and i love making and designing my own clothes.

This would also be an ideal opportunity for me to boost my London College of Fashion application while also developing my self confidence and abilities.

If you need a hard working individual who very keen to learn new things then please email me at:
buffystar2@hotmail.com Part time work would be ideal! =]

Well i am currently in Lower Sixth and wanting to attend college for year 13 doing a Art Portfolio course!

Im going to the open day on the 25th November =]

Hopefully after year 13 i would like to do a course in fashion technology!

But yeah! It is really weird! My friend is also on this website (Jess_04) and she is taking Art and Textiles and looking for work experience! It just shows how competitive its going to be! =/.

Yes i know its ridiculous, its healthy to be competitive it keeps u on ur toes but alot of people go over the top. U have to make sure ur thick skinned (im working on that one :().

Which open day is on the 25th? Is that for foundation studies? x wow, yes I am also in the same situation; taking textiles and art (but also classics) relevant work experience is difficult to find, as is any other type of job! :(

good luck hunting though :laugh: :
